Who Is This Course For?

Any students who are interested in learning about the languages and cultures of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples of Australia.

What Will I Learn?

You will study the following topics:

- Australian languages – linguistic structures and usage, as well as current status
- Regional and Local languages – which languages are of significance to this region and how they describe the country and name organisations
- Learning of a Target language – this will be basic in nature, or building upon what a student already knows within the constraints of resourcing

How will I be assessed?

Students provide evidence of their learning through three or four assessments, with at least one assessment from each assessment type.

Assessment Type 1: Folio

Assessment Type 2: Text Analysis

Assessment Type 3: Issues Study
